v.

THOMAS J. VILSACK, Secretary of and for United States Department of Agriculture,

Defendant - Appellee

Appeal from the United States District Court for the Southern District of Mississippi
USDC No. 3:10-CV-120

Before HIGGINBOTHAM, OWEN, and SOUTHWICK, Circuit Judges.

PER CURIAM:*

Bennie Hutchins sued the United States Department of Agriculture claiming that the agency's decision to promote a younger, less qualified African American man in lieu of Hutchins amounted to race- and age-discrimination in violation of federal law. The case was tried to a jury, which returned a verdict for the defendant. Hutchins moved for Rule 50 judgment as a matter of law and the district court denied the motion. This appeal followed.

On appeal, Hutchins maintains that the jury verdict is unsupported by the evidence, also challenging a number of the district court's evidentiary rulings. After carefully reviewing the briefs, the record, and applicable law, we conclude that Hutchins's appeal is meritless. Hutchins's age- and race-discrimination claims were fully developed before the district court. The jury rendered a defensible verdict and the district court did not abuse its discretion in any of its evidentiary rulings. The judgment of the district court is AFFIRMED.
