term of supervised release he was serving at the time of the offense. Because his appellate brief does not address the revocation or the revocation sentence, he abandons any challenge to it. See Yohey v. Collins, 985 F.2d 222, 224–25 (5th Cir. 1993).

For the first time on appeal, Carrasco-Lujan challenges the condition of his supervised release which states that, if the probation officer determines that Carrasco-Lujan presents a risk to another person, the probation officer may require Carrasco-Lujan to notify the person of that risk and may contact the person to confirm that notification occurred. Carrasco-Lujan contends that the condition constitutes an impermissible delegation of judicial authority to the probation officer.

The government has filed an unopposed motion for summary affirmance in which it contends that the sole issue on appeal is foreclosed by United States v. Mejia-Banegas, 32 F.4th 450, 451–52 (5th Cir. 2022), in which we rejected the specific argument that Carrasco-Lujan raises. Because summary disposition is appropriate, see Groendyke Transp., Inc. v. Davis, 406 F.2d 1158, 1162 (5th Cir. 1969), the government’s motion for summary affirmance is GRANTED, the government’s alternative motion for an extension of time to file its brief is DENIED, and the judgment is AFFIRMED.
