adjustment of status under 8 U.S.C. § 1255(a), which she requested after being granted a visa as a self-petitioner under the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA).

Under § 1255(a), an alien with an approved petition for classification as a VAWA self-petitioner may have her status adjusted to a lawful permanent resident by the Attorney General “in his discretion.” Pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(B)(i), we lack jurisdiction to review a denial of discretionary relief, including “any judgment regarding the granting of relief under § . . . 1255.” See Patel v. Garland, 142 S. Ct. 1614, 1621-22 (2022) (internal quotation marks omitted). However, there are exceptions to the jurisdiction-stripping provisions of § 1252(a)(2)(B) for “constitutional claims or questions of law.” § 1252(a)(2)(D); see Patel, 142 S. Ct. at 1623.

We lack jurisdiction to consider Velancous Serpa’s challenge to the agency’s denial on discretionary grounds of her request for adjustment of status under § 1255(a). In Patel, 142 S. Ct. at 1621-22, the Supreme Court confirmed that § 1252(a) strips courts of jurisdiction to review any and all decisions relating to the granting or denying of relief under § 1255 and the other enumerated statutes. There is no merit to Velancous Serpa’s arguments that the agency’s adverse credibility determination and its alleged failure to consider her favorable equities raise legal or constitutional questions that are reviewable under § 1252(a)(2)(D). See Garland v. Ming Dai, 141 S. Ct. 1669, 1681 (2021); Nastase v. Barr, 964 F.3d 313, 319 (5th Cir. 2020) (stating that an alien “may not—merely by phrasing his argument in legal terms—use those terms to cloak a request for review of the BIA’s discretionary decision, which is not a question of law”) (internal quotation marks, brackets, and citation omitted).

The petition for review is DISMISSED.
